SHOOTS WIFE IN QUARREL

Mt. Holly, N. J., Dec. 5.—Morris Pierce was in the custody of police today charged with atrocious assault and battery and carrying concealed deadly weapons, the aftermath of the shooting of Pierce's wife. Pierce, according to police, announced yesterday that a clergyman who usually ate his Sunday dinner at the Pierce home no longer was a welcome guest. Miss Archetta Jones, a niece, took offense and a quarrel followed, police said. Angered by the verbal exchange, police said Pierce obtained a gun and shot at the girl as his wife Anna stepped between them. One bullet lodged in Mrs. Pierce's shoulder. She is in Burlington County Hospital, where it is expected she will recover.

Two Croydon Men Held Up; One Beaten; Bandits Escape

Two Croydon men were held up Friday night, one being beaten, but no money being secured by the four young highwaymen.

The two halted were Benjamin Ahart and Charles Paulsworth. The men were returning to their homes here. Ahart, who was driving his automobile, stopped at State Road and Wyoming avenue, to leave Paulsworth out. Another car drove directly in front of the Ahart car. Two of the young men leaped from the machine and grabbed Paulsworth, beating him while he was kept covered with a gun. Ahart, his path blocked by the machine ahead, jumped from his car and ran across the lots, while the quartet called that they would get him later.

Evidently becoming alarmed that the noise might bring help the four hurried to their car, which bore New Jersey license plates, and sped away.

BRYN ATHYN WRECK TOOK PLACE ELEVEN YEARS AGO

"Jimmie" Rook, Hero of The Day, Permanently Injured, Doesn't Complain

25 KILLED; MANY HURT

Many residents of Bucks County will recall that today marks the 11th anniversary of a serious railroad wreck that occurred near Bryn Athyn just over the Bucks County borderline.

The accident in which two trains struck head-on near a tunnel, cost the lives of 25, and wreaked misery in suffering from dozens more.

One of the survivors, an engineer, who was permanently crippled, is James H. ("Jimmie") Rook, of Newtown, about whom Laura Lee in a recent issue of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin had the following to say:

Just 11 years ago next month James H. ("Jimmie") Rook, of Newtown, won the title: "The hero of the Bryn Athyn wreck."

Others may have forgotten the incident. Not Mr. Rook. He has too many reminders. He has just returned from the Abington Memorial Hospital, where he underwent four serious operations necessary because of internal injuries incurred at the time of the accident.

Today the 61-year-old man is putting up a brave fight, just as he fought bravely 11 years ago.

When reminded of the title, a slow, sad smile spreads over his face, and a little light comes into his sunken eyes. . . and he taps his left knee, a monument to the wizardry of modern science.

UTILITIES LEGISLATION LOOMS FOR ASSEMBLY

Issue Regarded as So Much
"Political Gunpowder"

"WHITEWASH" HINTED

(This is the fifth of a series of articles dealing with 1933 legislative subjects.—I. N. S.)

By Joseph A. Loftus

HARRISBURG, Dec. 5.—(INS)—Utilities legislation looms large and threatening on the calendar of the 1933 assembly.

On the next Legislature's doorstep will undoubtedly be deposited the report of Senator William S. Rial's investigating committee. That report, unless all cogent signs fail, will recommend legislation designed to sharpen the teeth of present utility laws and perhaps add a few new ones.

The utilities issue, kept in a lively state through the persistent efforts of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, is regarded as so much political gunpowder. Efforts to send the utilities question through the legislative mill for remodeling may embroil the Assembly in unavailing internal strife such as featured the 1931 session.

From answers to the Governor's questionnaire sent to all legislative candidates, it would appear that the Democratic delegation is closely in sympathy with his views on utility regulation. That is an alignment of more than usual significance in a legislature where the Democrats have made such wide gains.

The committee's recommendations for public service legislation will be designed largely by Dr. John G. Hervey, of Temple University, retained to aid Oliver K. Eaton and J. Julius Levy, the committee's counsel, in an advisory capacity, and Charles Nodder, federal trade commission expert.

Nodder and the committee's own experts have been directed to frame legislation through which the State may have control over holding and managing affiliates of utilities. The committee, on the face of directions to its counsel, is anxious to smash legally the system by which utilities submit to a dual milking at the hands of their holding company affiliates and the subsidiaries which "manage" them, as Nodder's testimony has revealed.

The committee has further directed its counsel to study the financing methods of utilities. Neither the public service commission nor the state securities commission has clearly defined authority to interfere with the financing of utilities. Legislation designed to give the state broader powers along this line is expected to be submitted by the committee.

The legislative reference bureau has already begun the task of framing the preliminary legislation as requested by the Rial committee. The nation's Supreme Court recently affirmed the authority of the federal power commission to interest itself in the financial affairs of giant utility holding chains and operating systems. No such authority has yet been legally and judicially delegated to a state. The committee is thus faced with a gigantic task in endeavoring to frame passable H. ("Jimmie") Rook, of Newtown, won the title: "The hero of the Bryn Athyn wreck."

Others may have forgotten the incident. Not Mr. Rook. He has too many reminders. He has just returned from the Abington Memorial Hospital, where he underwent four serious operations necessary because of internal injuries incurred at the time of the accident.

Today the 61-year-old man is putting up a brave fight, just as he fought bravely 11 years ago.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS WILL MEET AT DOYLESTOWN

Fall Meeting is Scheduled for December 13th; A Fine
Program

TO HAVE DISCUSSIONS

On Tuesday, December 13, the fall meeting of the Bucks County School Directors' Association will be held in Doylestown. At the morning session Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, president of the Slippery Rock State Teachers' College, will discuss the proposed larger unit of school administration. Dr. Eisenberg is chairman of the State Committee preparing the plan to be presented to the State Legislature in January. At the afternoon session Dr. Eisenberg will state how the proposed plan will affect Bucks County.

At the afternoon session Dr. Franklin Spencer Edmonds, sponsor of the Edmonds Act, and the leading authority in Pennsylvania on Taxation, will discuss "Pennsylvania's Problems in Public Education."

Dr. Eisenberg and Dr. Edmonds are the State leaders on these respective problems which they will discuss.

This is a critical period in the history of educational affairs in our State. Powerful interests are at present attacking and defending the present school policies in every form. "State appropriations to our various districts are receiving especial attention, and unless the school administrators in the various counties keep in constant touch with the coming meeting of the Legislature in January, our local boards will suffer instead of being relieved of greater burdens of taxation," states the announcement of Ralph M. Fox, president of Bucks County School Directors' Association.

TROOPERS FROM READING "PULL" RAIDS ON QUIET

Justice of Peace Accompanies
Raiders and Conducts Hearings

RELEASED UNDER BAIL

Under Cover Men Obtained
Evidence, is Report
Now Voiced

Shattering all precedents two carloads of State troopers mobilized from Lancaster and Reading swooped down on two alleged liquor dispensaries in Croydon late Saturday night. Four arrests were made, beer, whiskey and champagne were confiscated and the quartette arrested was held for a further hearing Friday night.

The raids were featured by a number of unusual circumstances and conditions which are said to be out of the ordinary for State troopers to operate under.

Local authorities were ignored completely even to the State troopers at the Morrisville barracks. The raiders obtained their warrants at South Langhorne and again broke all precedents when those arrested were given hearings right upon the premises by Justice Norman Moore, Langhorne. The two carloads of troopers from the Reading barracks, working under the direction of two investigators from Harrisburg, descended simultaneously upon the establishments at the height of the merry-making. Planos were playing, glasses were tinkling and "old man depression" was forgotten.

Two slot machines, a quantity of barreled beer, whiskey and champagne were taken, loaded into a truck and hauled off to Doylestown. It is said that both places were crowded with patrons, most of whom are said to have been Philadelphians.

Evidence upon which the raids were made is said to have been obtained by two under-cover men from Harrisburg. These men have been working in the vicinity for some time. These under cover men were dressed in civilian clothes Saturday night. They "bossed" the job, sealed the samples taken and were in every respect in charge of the raid.

One of the places raided was the roadhouse of Harry Harriman and Joseph Johnson, Delaware avenue, Croydon. Four kegs of beer and quantities of alleged whiskey and champagne were seized as well as a slot machine. The other place was that of "Chick" Stoy and Bill Snyder. Two kegs of beer, alleged whiskey and a slot machine were seized.

Snyder's place recently figured in a hold-up and those found guilty were given long terms in the county jail. At the time of the hold-up it is said copper beer coils were stolen and it was intimated that rival beer barons were fighting for the trade in Bucks County.

Each of the men arrested were held under $750 each for a further hearing Friday night. Heading the raiders were Corporals Stewart and Mock.

The unusual features of the raids were the facts that State troopers from Morrisville were out patrolling the highways in search of hold-ups, when the raids were staged, warrants were obtained from a justice of peace who went along with the raiders and conducted hearings on the premises, which is very unusual. Nine state troopers were brought all the way from Reading and none of the details at Doylestown, Morrisville and other nearby sections participated.

Just what the under cover men have discovered in this section is not known. Fear is in the hearts of those who have been operating questionable places and again the coils have been drained, counters mopped-up and things are dry.

One of the rumors in circulation concerning the raids is that complaints were filed at Harrisburg because of a grudge of certain individuals, another story is that racketeers are determined to square things for the long jail sentences given those who were convicted of holding-up road houses in Bucks County, a few months ago.

Future developments are to be watched with interest.

MORE PRICE-FIXING

This season it isn't the "farm board," "farm loans," "debentures" or "equalization fees." The newest and latest thing in farm relief is the "allotment plan."

Congressman Rainey, Democratic floor leader of the house and possible next speaker, is for it. Senator Norbeck conceived the scheme. And proponents of the plan claim the benediction of the president-elect, although he has not publicly expressed an opinion.

This is the allotment plan as now advanced: It would be applied to hogs, cotton and wheat for one year as an experiment. The farmer would be given a bonus on such part of his product as is required by the home market. For some reason not apparent the amount of duty assessed on foreign products competing with him would be the measure of this bonus. The duty on wheat being 42 cents a bushel, the American wheat grower would be given, in cash or certificate, a bonus of 42 cents a bushel on the percentage of his crop required for the home market.

Who would pay the bonus? The consumer through the miller. This is an attempt to fix prices by indirection. But would it accomplish its purpose to give the producer a fair return on his labor and capital? Isn't it more likely that the bonus would be figured in the price all along the line and that, other conditions remained unchanged, wheat selling for 45 cents a bushel before the bonus would still bring 45 cents, including the bonus, after the allotment became effective?

The most that can be said for the price-fixing advocates is that they will not admit they are licked.

BAY STATE PREPAREDNESS

Massachusetts, one of the first wet states, will not be caught napping if and when Federal prohibition legislation is modified or repealed. Governor Ely has already named a commission to frame a liquor control act that the state may not be without liquor control even for a short time.

Modification of the Volstead act may be a matter of but a few weeks and is certain to take the form of legalizing beer of sufficient alcoholic content to make state control of its manufacture and sale inevitable. State lawmakers will want to designate by whom and under what restrictions it is to be sold.

State control will supplant Federal control. Some states may again legalize the saloon, which never really disappeared, or permit the unrestricted sale of beer. Others will adopt a Canadian system which bans all public drinking. A few will enact state prohibition. None will miss the opportunity to tax beer. All will require new legislation.

It is not too early to consider state substitutes. Snap judgment or haste is to be avoided. Never again must the country or any part of it rush into uncharted territory as far as Old John Barleycorn is concerned unless it craves excitement and much grief. Timely consideration is essential to a prudent and successful solution.

Once debt was a disgrace; now if you don't owe anything, people think the instalment man wouldn't trust you.

shattered. It was at first thought amputation of his leg would be necessary.

Later an operation on his knee cap was performed, as a last resort, but surgeons held out little hope of his ever again being able to bend the knee.

Yet when the wound healed, Rook walked about bending his left knee almost as freely as his right—one of the few such cases known to medical history.

The morning of the accident, December 5, 1921, was a snowy one. Rook, the engineer of Train 156, of the Philadelphia & Reading, had orders to pass 151 at Bryn Athyn—151 taking a siding.

He had one of those strange premonitions of impending disaster.

"I had a feeling sweep over me that 151 was coming," he said. "I kept blowing my whistle all the way, after I passed under the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge. I had my hand on the brake valve, ready to stop the train in an instant. I wanted to stop the train between stations, but I was afraid they'd say I was crazy and would drop me from the service. I was going to say something was wrong under the engine."

"I heard a sound in the cut above Bryn Athyn when I was about 39 feet off, and immediately 'slammed on the air.' But it was too late. Then I said to myself: 'Here's where I die.'"

The impact of the trains as they tore into each other was so great that it hurled the engine of 156 in the air like a toy and tore three cars to matchwood. Hot coals from the twisted wreckage of the locomotives poured a flood of agony and death on helpless passengers pinioned in the shattered coaches.

Twenty-five were killed, and many more were injured, including the engineer of 151, who, with the conductor, was later sentenced to six months in prison for criminal negligence.

Rook was caught in his cab, burned, scalded, crushed and mangled. His clothes were burned and torn from his body, leaving him almost naked in the snow until someone wrapped him in newspapers.

From his bed in the snow he called out instructions for saving passengers caught in the mangled wreck.

When the Abington Hospital ambulance arrived, something was wrong with its motor and it refused to start. While doctors held him in their arms, his face distorted with suffering, Rook who knows all about engines, examined that one and found the trouble, which the driver remedied. The six most seriously injured victims were being taken first.

After about 100 yards the motor stopped again. The air intake covering was again loose. To get the maximum speed out of the motor it would have to be closed.

After considerable insistence, Rook was allowed to lie on the running board—the interne was inside ministering to the other injured—and hold his hand over the intake, keeping out the air and enabling the ambulance to make a record-breaking run to the hospital. Physicians later said if the injured had been held up a little longer, there would have been little hope for the recovery of any of them.

After six months in the Abington Hospital, Rook retired to his century-old home in Newtown, where he has lived since, excepting for intervals spent in the hospital.

His hopes of again riding in the cab of an engine were soon quashed. He spends his days looking after his place and feeding the chickens. . . . He never complains.

FOOT HEALTH

WALK FOR HEALTH

—by—

WILLIAM A. GROFF

Foot Specialist 329 Radcliffe St.
Walking engages every muscle cell in the body; that is, every muscle cell participates in the act of walking, and even in the tension needed for standing and holding the body weight in any of its position of unstable equilibrium. It thus brings to action the muscle of the respiratory system to take in sufficient oxygen and to dispose readily of the waste, such as carbon dioxide, so also the muscular coats of the digestive tract and its organs are brought to action, to generate all the secretions needed and to expedite all the residue and waste materials in due time. All the tissues and organs of the body are put to normal action by the act of walking. In walking, place the feet straight ahead, about four inches apart; keep the ankles straight and support the weight of your body on the outer part of your feet. When you walk, bend your knees. Most women walk with a stiff knee, which is not graceful nor healthy.—(Adv.)

SPORTS

HORSE SHOW ATTRACTS ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD

Ideal weather, a large and enthusiastic crowd with plenty of color, greeted the riders of the Bristol Riding Club at the horse show held last Saturday afternoon at the club's headquarters on Newportville road. It was the initial event.

Beautiful cigarette girls, with many of the fair sex attired in the latest in riding habits, on prancing horses, made the affair look like the Devon or Bryn Mawr shows.

The program furnished plenty of thrills, particularly in the jumping contest, where a great exhibition was given by the various entrants. Ralph Powell, who was the high scorer in the show, was given a big ovation for his horsemanship.

The first event, saddle horse, girl riders, was won by Mrs. Elma Hussey. Helen Van Sant second, Gertrude Murphy third.

Event No. 2, jumping contest over course, was won by Ralph Powell, Gail Stevenson second, Frank Donnelly third.

The off and on contest, which furnished plenty of laughs and thrills, was won by Ralph Powell, with Frank Donnelly second and Clarence Powell third.

Another interesting event was the ruble jumping contest. Frank Donnelly won in this event, with Ralph Powell second and Dr. Edward Laing third.

Teams of two jumpers over the course was won by Gail Stevenson, with Ralph Powell second and Clarence Powell third.

Touch and Out contest, an event that created a lot of interest, was won by Frank Hurley on "Silver King."

The pony event was captured by little Carl Schilling, with Anna Runner second and John Runner third. This event ended in a race across the course with the little people showing plenty of action.

The riders who participated in the events:

Ladies—Mrs. "Betty" Wetherill, Mrs. Elma Hussey, Mrs. Florence Hanford, Mrs. E. J. Laing, Mrs. George Willis, Gertrude Murphy, Nan Hutchison, Yvonne Hurley, Harriet Reynolds, Marion Wells, Helen Van Sant, Irene Carl and Mrs. George Lasky.

Men—Gail Stevenson, Frank Donnelly, Peter Thropp, George Wetherill, Dr. E. J. Laing, Ralph Powell, Clarence Powell, Charles Thompson and Carl Schilling.

The judges were Messrs Gordon Trefts and James Leach, of the veterinary school of the University of Pennsylvania.

BRIDGE REPAIR COST SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Total Costs Ran as High as $51,255.54 in 1931, It Is Stated

KEPT IN GOOD REPAIR

In 1918 the bridges and highways of Bucks county could be kept in repair and maintained for $31,561.95, but last year (1931) it cost $51,255.54 to maintain the bridges and routes of travel in the county.

"It will be admitted that Bucks county's bridges, highways and routes of travel are kept in the best possible care for the amount of money expended," states Earl Brown, of the Commissioners' office at Doylestown.

The low water mark for spending money on the county roads and bridges was in 1919—the year the World War ended—when, due to economic conditions, the commissioners spent only $11,876.31 for construction alone. For maintenance they spent $90,257.34. Incidentally, it may be stated, that during that year the commissioners were extremely frugal and cautious about spending money.

With the expenditure of $20,450 the next year, statistics show there was a correspondingly heavy expenditure, due to the many repairs that were not made during the war-time period.

In the post-war period there has been a steady increase in the construction, maintenance, land purchase and turnpike damage claims. Last year for the latter Bucks County paid $27,796.98 alone. It cost the County Commissioners $51,255.54 to maintain its bridges and roads and the sum of $81,689.56 was spent for the construction of new bridges and roads throughout the county.

Several bridges, which were under construction during the World War, had to be abandoned for lack of funds to carry on.

Two years, 1928 and 1931, both surpassed this year for construction expenditure, with the former totaling $153,818.83, and the latter $147,452.20. The reason for this increase, it was explained, was the elaborate building program carried out.

The total amount of money spent for bridges and arteries of travel in Bucks county in 1918 was $107,794 as against that of $160,742 last year.

Vincent Disone Dies; Cause of Injury Mystery

Vincent Disone, 12, of 315 Grant avenue, died at Harriman Hospital this morning at 9:30, from tetanus.

The lad was injured on the right heel about 10 days ago, and treatment was given at Harriman Hospital. The lad is said to have given rather a vague story as to the cause of the injury, stating he was struck by a falling object. He again was taken to the hospital the middle of last week, at that time stating his heel had been caught in a switch on the P. R. R. here. His companion however denied this, and cause of the injury remains a mystery. Yesterday the Disone boy was taken to the institution for the third time, poisoning having developed. Death occurred this morning. The body was removed to the Disone home.

Washington Letter

By KINGSBURY SMITH

L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(INS)—Whether an alligator pear is a pear or is not a pear is an international question upon the settlement of which may depend the future friendly relations of the sun-kissed state of Florida and its Latin neighbor across the straits, the Republic of Cuba.

At least, so one is led to believe in quarters of the national capital where this fruit, vegetable or whatever it may be is considered a vital question. "Fuzzy-wuzzy" Fletcher, as the kindly little elderly Democratic Senator from Florida is good-naturedly called in the Senate press gallery, maintains that an alligator pear is a pear and that if the United States Customs Court rules to the contrary he will introduce a bill in Congress to make it a pear.

Suave, mild-mannered little Jose Baron, diplomatic counselor of the Cuban Embassy, simply cannot understand how anyone could consider an alligator, or alligator pear, a fruit. It is ridiculous. But what is more ridiculous to the tranquility that is Senator Baron is that someone contended alligator pears are eaten with cream and sugar.

"Who ever heard of alligator pears being eaten that way," smiles Counselor Baron.

The question of just what is an alligator pear has been holding up appraisements on the Cuban imports of the article for a year now, while the Florida fruit growers and the Treasury department wrangled over it in Customs courts from the Gulf of Mexico to Manhattan Isle. At the moment the case is pending before a Customs Court in New York.

The Treasury Department has ruled, and been upheld by the State Department, that under a commercial treaty signed with Cuba in 1903, alligator pears are exempt from the regulations covering fruits. The foreign commodities division of the Customs Bureau does not list them either as a fruit or vegetable, but merely as alligator pears under a specific provision. The Treasury Department asserts they come under the free list in accordance with the terms of the Cuban Treaty providing that all products of the arm on the free list at the time the treaty became effective remain duty free.

Under the 1930 tariff act, imported alligator pears were made subject to a 15c per pound duty and classified under fruits. The Treasury Department maintains this duty does not apply to Cuban avocados, first because they did not come under the regular fruit list in the treaty with Cuba and secondly because they were on the free list.

Florida fruit growers, who make a specialty of cultivating alligator pears, contend they are pears and should be subject to the tariff. When the Treasury ruled to the contrary regarding the latter point, the case was taken to the Customs courts and still is pending before them.

Senator Fletcher has served notice that if the courts finally rule the alligator pear is exempt from the tariff duty, he will introduce a bill in Congress to amend the 1903 treaty with respect to alligator pears. He will make the alligator pear a fruit once and for all by act of congress.

"Everybody calls them pears," huffed the veteran little senator. "They are pears and they should be so classified. We have a right to denounce the agreement with Cuba so far as this item is concerned. We have the power to do it, the right to do it, and ought to do it."

But regardless of what they may happen to be, the Senator would like to emphasize that the Florida species is the aristocrat of the product. The Cuban pears just grow and drop from the trees. The Florida pear is cultivated, educated and calculated to be a positive cure for diabetes.

THIS CHRISTMAS I'D LIKE AN ELECTRIC WASHER

if it's a Maytag

"I never even thought of home washing before. But I've seen how easy it is to wash in a Maytag. And it seems silly to pay someone else to do such light work."

But don't confuse "buying a washer" with investing in a Maytag. A Maytag washes clothes cleaner...faster...with less work...less wear and tear on clothes...less cost per washing...and keeps on doing that for more years. It represents a permanent investment in household equipment and in actual dollars and cents savings.

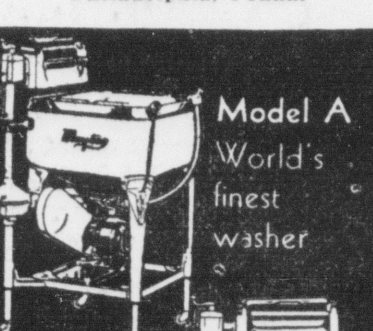

Certainly a gift—if it's a Maytag. Come in and let us demonstrate and talk terms.
